Certification Description: The Department of Health and Social Services, Section 50.545, Stats., requires that beginning January 1, 1995, as a condition for operating a restaurant in Wisconsin, the operator or manager must hold a certification issued by D.H.F.S. as evidence that they are knowledgeable about appropriate food protection practices. This certification is valid for a period of five years and may be renewed with successful recertification training. The course outline follows the National Restaurant Association's criteria of food protection practices.

The course covers the following subjects:

- Temperature control of potentially hazardous food during preparation, storage, transportation and service
- Effective cleaning and sanitation of utensils and equipment
- Food protection, including the shelf life for foods
- Food worker personal hygiene
- Effective handwashing techniques
- Identification of potentially hazardous food
- Storage and use of toxic products
- Special problems in food service sanitation
